Amortization of loans. In lending, amortization is the distribution of loan repayments into multiple cash flow installments, as determined by an amortization schedule. Unlike other repayment models, each repayment installment consists of both principal and interest. Amortization is chiefly used in loan repayments (a common example being a mortgage loan) and in sinking funds.

The Euler characteristic can be defined for connected plane graphs by the same χ + formula as for polyhedral surfaces, where F is the number of faces in the graph, including the exterior face.. The Euler characteristic of any plane connected graph G is 2. This is easily proved by induction on the number of faces determined by G , starting with a tree as the base case.
