A generation is "all of the people born and living at about the same time, regarded collectively". It can also be described as, "the average period, generally considered to be about thirty years, during which children are born and grow up, become adults, and begin to have children of their own". In kinship terminology, it is a structural term designating the parent-child relationship.

In particle physics, a generation or family is a division of the elementary particles. Between generations, particles differ by their flavour quantum number and mass, but their interactions are identical.. There are three generations according to the Standard Model of particle physics. Each generation is divided into two types of leptons and two types of quarks.

Generation Y is made up of people born after Generation X. There are no exact dates for when Generation Y started and ended. But the time is roughly for births between the early 1980s to the mid-1990s or early 2000s. People in this generation are sometimes called Millennials. They are also called Echo Boomers because of the high birth rate during this period.
